Rediscover the Healing Power of Music: Join Our Open Jam Session for Retired DC Jazz Musicians!

The Genevieve N. Johnson Senior Day Care Center is currently seeking retired DC jazz musicians for its Music Memory Café program. This creative engagement program is specifically designed for retired musicians over the age of sixty who can benefit from the therapeutic value of music, especially as they age.

Under the leadership of GNJ's Artistic Music Director, Davey Yarborough, a well-known saxophonist, recording artist, and educator, the Music Memory Café offers retired musicians a unique opportunity to connect with others, share their love of music, and participate in a safe and supportive environment.

The GNJ Music Memory Café program is structured to enhance the well-being of seniors in the District of Columbia, utilizing a series of creative engagements to open up imaginative memories. Through music and socialization, the Music Memory Café aims to promote a sense of community and foster a supportive environment for participants.

If you or someone you know is a retired DC jazz musician over the age of sixty and is interested in joining this program, please contact Angela Ballard at 202-723-8537.

For more information about the Music Memory Café and how to participate, please visit the Genevieve N. Johnson Senior Day Care Center website at www.gnjseniordaycare.com.
